

This is a scale that is designed to measure the state of your satisfaction in various aspects of life. You can find it in summary form by clicking on the link below, and you can get a detailed set of instructions and information by following the link: <https://www.scribd.com/document/35897674/life-satisfaction-scale-by-singh-and-joseph> This scale has twelve different factors that are worth one point each on a scale from 0 (completely dissatisfied) to 4 (completely satisfied). Example: how satisfied are you that your family and friends show you respect? The results of this test should be used in conjunction with the other tests provided by the company. The other tests include a physical measurements scale, a personality test, and a teen test. The teen test can be found here: <https://www.scribd.com/document/35896893/teen-test> This scale is designed for use with a version of PSI called PSI-4. You can find out more information about it here: <https://psi4.com/en/help/PSI-4-UserManual-ENVersion2.1.pdf> This scale is designed to measure the satisfaction of a person while participating in a given activity. It has to be used while performing something that is fun and enjoyable, such as playing video games, watching TV or reading a book. The activity should last between 60 and 120 minutes. You'll complete the scale before starting the activity so that you can get your baseline score. After completing the activity, you'll get your score by adding up the scores from each of the five factors. This scale is designed for use with a version of PSI called PSI-4.
